

David LaRonde

BIOGRAPHICAL INFO

Peter Cliche.	Lead guitar
Shawn Sasyniuk.	Drums, vocals
Scott Aultman.	Bass
Sam Depatie.	Violin, vocals
David Laronde.	Rhythm guitar, vocals

BIO

David Laronde is an Indigenous singer-songwriter and multi-instrumentalist from Temagami Anishnabai (Deep Water People) Northern Ontario. His Debut CD, "Right City Wrong Town" was nominated Best Blues CD by Aboriginal Peoples Choice Music Awards 2013.

Inspired by a vast variety of Folk, Country, Rock and Blues artists, David's storytelling describes fresh takes on heartbreak, loneliness, love, hope, joy, and a cool summer breeze. Much of his song material intertwines the mystical power of the land and its ancient people against a backdrop of natural forces.....wind, water and waves.

Direction home and a re-rooting of personal beliefs inspired the writing of a second album "Under the Raven's Wing". This homecoming took shape as a healing, deeply personal writing and recording project defining him as a gifted contemporary indigenous writer and singer. His music makes the transition from folk to rock to blues seamlessly as the songs "get personal" one minute with Can't Take You With Me or Brothers and Sisters and then "exploding into universal themes" with edgy rock vibes in Show Me a Sign and Eternity. Upbeat songs like Northwind Track and Whispering Wind paint the scenery for the journey. The music tends to navigate universal mysteries and personal journeys and roll them into a single song that has to be shared with you.